Dear Student,

Greetings!

During this simulation, you will be interacting with an agitated standardized patient. Please be aware that the standardized patient's behavior may include expressions of anger, frustration, or distress. As part of your training, you may encounter intense emotions.

If you find this content distressing or triggering, remember that it is a simulated scenario, and you can step out or seek support from your faculty at any time during the simulation if needed. Your well-being is important to us, and we encourage open communication throughout the exercise.

Thank you for your participation, and let's approach this learning opportunity with empathy and professionalism.

Best regards,

N108 Faculty
